PROFILE

o More than two and a half years ago, with a person who is also in that domain, I started to learning everything related to programming, specifically frontend development.

o Went through various online courses and YouTube tutorials and so I actually started doing my first independent projects. Of course, in the beginning it was a single page websites, but over time and with more and more experience, I manage to make a more complex projects, where I needed to know JS logic, API connections, knowledge about responsiveness and more demanding web design.

o Gained 9 months of professional experience working at my first job where I learned to work with technologies such as React.js, Next.js, GQL and Typescript, and I hope to continue to have the opportunity to learn and progress as before.
